Promising Beginnings

Congratulations to Principal Ms Sneh Verma, teachers and students on the launch of the Cambridge Newsletter.

A successful academic session in which the geometric progression of the children is quite obvious, is an achievement that is worthy of great praise.

It is indeed deeply satisfying to observe that all endeavours and initiatives that you take up always see you completely dedicated to the task.

I am quite convinced that not only will you carry this initiative forward with great success, fulfil the needs of the learners to develop a global perspective and become capable of taking on the mantle of responsibility for the future.

Benedictions

I extend my heartiest congratulations to the Principal Ms Sneh Verma and faculty members at Kulachi Hansraj Model School.

To begin well and continue it with diligence and elan, is a quality that you have showcased with this great initiative.

The teething problems that you tackled with sincere and honest effort are truly appreciable. I am certain that you will move forward with sure steps and very soon, some of the young learners will emerge to shine like the stars of the galaxy.

I am certain that the young Cambridge learners will excel and move from strength to strength to become citizens of the 21st Century.

Strong Convictions Precede Great Action!

It is heartening to see the immense learning leap that the young Cambridge learners have transcended with great beginnings and excellent practices. The first issue of the 'Cambridge Chronicles' is a step to showcase the world of Cambridge at KHMS and give you an overview of the activities that the students are participating in.

The Recognition Day 'Wishes and Wings' or the project on 'Suryakant Tripathi Nirala' or the 3D movie 'Lion King' and a plethora of activities all are value additions which sought to provide the Cambridge advantage.

Our aim is to help children exercise decision-making and choice alongwith a respect for others to enjoy the same, as they build habits of persistence, perseverance, endeavour and co-operation alongwith a firm value system by incorporating moral education and the mother tongue, while at the same time accepting new and different challenges under the benevolent guidance of the warm and thoughtful adults around them.

Looking forward to a new synergy of growth and development.

Ms. Sneha Verma
Principal

Wish Bone or Back Bone

In our endeavour to love our children like no other, we at times indulge in fulfilling every wish and whim of the child. Often building a false sense of entitlement and considering themselves to be the centre of the universe.

In the beginning, we aim at developing firm, well balanced and independent youngsters with a backbone. But when our love becomes pampering and over - pampering, children inculcate a wishbone.

If you are doing their homework, or packing their bags every night or feeding them, while they play with the mobile or watch television, you are obliquely indicating that they deserve all these privileges.

To become self reliant individuals, children must learn to face obstacles and look for solutions.

Secure their world, make them feel loved but let the love translate into responsibility.

Hand hold your child till they are adults but also allow them to explore beyond the confines of your protective circle. Believe me, they will bless you as adults for giving them some of the most precious gifts of life.

Headmistress

Evolving Together @ Cambridge

To be a member of the burgeoning Cambridge education community has initiated several Eureka moments for the faculty members and children. The twinkle in their eyes and the tinkle in their laughter makes their joy evident. The curriculum ignites a spark of curiosity as learning by doing, field trips and explorations alongwith simulating techniques create a passion for knowledge and a flair for proficiency.

Sharing information and resources and learning from each other through zonal and national level community meets and conferences gives a unique chance to acquire skills and knowledge to suit, not just the cultural ethos of the country but at the same time, excel at school level and beyond, developing a mindset of efficiency, effectiveness and excellence.

A Walk With Nature.

Nature Walks have been adopted as regular field trips for the students.

Nature brings serenity to young minds as it breaks the monotony of classroom teaching and provides the students with a fresh outlook on life. By being with nature, students get a first hand chance to explore our diverse ecosystem, identify trees, plants and herbs, enjoy the chirping of birds, smell the scent of freshly cut grass and wet soil, and feel the tenderness of leaves.

Learning with Experts – the Cambridge Parent Mentorship Programme

The Parent Mentorship Program is an initiative where students get to contemplate a topic with a parent, in addition to the teacher.

Mr. Vijaya C.Kumar who is an expert in the topic spent quality time with Class 4 students. He helped the students understand the unit- Exploring Space. Explaining the peculiarity of space and celestial bodies and exhibited these entities in real time through an app.

Ms. Anshul Sharma, a pro-active parent of Class I spent time with the children explaining innovative and fun ways to learn multiplication.

Teachers' Day was made special with story puppets and paper folding activities conducted by parent mentors Ms. Sharma and Ms. Kathuria.

Ms. Gupta and Ms Jha conducted interesting craft activities like 'Making Ravan' during Dusshera.

It's Skype Time

The ecstasy of classes I and II Cambridge students knew no bounds when they experienced an enchanting insight into the world of technology. Our five and six year olds interacted with students from DAV Pushpanjali via Skype.

The preprimary students enjoyed sharing inputs with their friends across the screen.

Class I students exchanged their views on the topic- 'Modes of Transport'. The instructive and helpful banners, symbols, commuter's guides enlightened the students regarding safe travel. Class II students shared stories, songs and poems by Gurudev Rabindranath Tagore. A nukkad natak, emphasizing the significance of education in students' lives, was performed by our students.

The mesmerized faces and twinkling eyes of the tiny tots, as they stared at the big screen connecting them to their friends, made all believe in magic.

Appreciating the renowned poet Shri Suryakant Tripathi 'Nirala'

The young learners of Class V K showcased the life and works of the poet as a tribute to the paragon of Chayavaadi era of Hindi literature- Shri Suryakant Tripathi 'Nirala'.

The phenomenal dramatic representation of another gem "Ram ki Shakti Puja" which explored the theme of spiritual and moral struggle in the face of injustice through unyielding spiritual and moral strength, was a stunning showcase of the revered poet.
